Biography - Lucile Blaise

Lucile Blaise, President of Sleep and Respiratory Care

Lucile Blaise is the President of Sleep and Respiratory Care at ResMed. She was brought onto the role in July of 2022 after over 25 years of medical technology (medtech) industry experience. In her position, she is responsible for leading strategies around ResMed's core business products. These include cloud-connectable devices, masks and other machine accessories. Her work directly impacts the millions of people around the world whose sleep is affected by forms of sleep apnea, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and other chronic conditions.

Blaise began her career at ResMed in 2006 where she held various roles in marketing and sales teams within Sleep and Respiratory Care. From 2012 to 2015, she served as the Vice President of France. She then transitioned to Vice President of Sleep and Respiratory Care for Western Europe in 2015. In that particular role, she was instrumental in the growth of the region as a whole alongside significant work in France and Belgium to establish telemedicine and public-payer market access and reimbursement for telemonitoring.

After serving as a board member since 2016, Blaise is currently president of France's premiere medtech association, Snitem. She also has served as a board member of MedTech Europe since 2020.

Blaise has a business degree from a school in Talence, France, known as the KEDGE Business School. She also has an international business Bachelor of Arts from the University of Sheffield in England.

Blaise loves spending time with her loved ones outside of her work. She can often be found traveling and learning about new cultures as well as participating in public health philanthropic efforts.
